

- NEWS
- WEATHER
- CAMERA NETWORK
- SPORTS
- ABOUT US
- HEALTH NEWS
- CONTESTS
- JOBS
- COMMUNITY
- VIDEOS

Search

LOCAL NEWS

Iowa State Patrol pilots monitor roadways from above

Posted: Sep 26, 2019 / 06:18 PM GMT-0500 / Updated: Sep 26, 2019 / 07:06 PM GMT-0500

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (KCAU) – As the wheels of the plane lift, State Trooper Todd Brechwald sinks into his comfort zone.

“The view is second to none. I couldn’t even paint a picture that pretty,” says Brechwald.

If you haven’t seen Trooper Brechwald on the roadways, it’s because he doesn’t usually drive your average patrol vehicle. Instead, he monitors from above.

“If it’s a capable day for flying they’re going to be up,” Iowa State Patrol Trooper John Farley said.

The troopers on the ground work with pilots to monitor the roadways more efficiently.

Brechwald says, “They issue the citation, what I do is make the observation.”

Using hash marks along the roadways to time how long it takes a driver to get from one end to the other, pilots are able to tell a drivers speed with just a stopwatch and some simple math.

Brechwald says, “I’ll watch just prior to them hitting that zone and then as they’re passing over that zone so it gives them the benefit of the doubt on the distance.”

A patrol pilot can call down anywhere from 40 to 70 citations in a day of flying.

“Speed is the number one killer in our state right now,” Brechwald said. “We have more people dying because of excessive speed so for us to be able to go out and slow people down and provide that service of safety for everybody that’s traveling on the roadways, that’s very important.”

And they do much more than just monitor roadways.

“Those aircraft are utilized in so many different aspects. Relays of organs and medicines, even our dignitaries are utilized through the state patrol aircraft,” Farley said.

Brechwald says, “Gaming enforcement, we’ll look for missing persons, I found an older gentleman that had been trapped under his four-wheeler in a creek, I’ve gone looking for people that were committing crimes.”

Providing life-saving services no other law enforcement could. Because whether they're on the ground or in the sky, the Iowa State Patrol's mission remains the same.

"It's making sure the public is being safe," says Farley.

"I don't know if you can have a better job," says Brechwald.

Copyright 2019 Nexstar Broadcasting, Inc. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten, or redistributed.

SHARE THIS STORY

MORE LOCAL NEWS STORIES

USD president puts priority on Dakota's Promise scholarships

by The Associated Press / Sep 27, 2019

VERMILLION, S.D. (AP) — University of South Dakota President Sheila Gestring says establishing a "Dakota's Promise" scholarship for qualifying university students will once again be a priority for the school.

In her annual State of the University address on Thursday, Gestring said the proposed program is necessary to ensure that USD remains accessible to hard-working and academically qualified students who can't afford college.

Read the Full Article

4th Republican joins race for US House seat held by King

by The Associated Press / Sep 27, 2019

ARNOLDS PARK, Iowa (AP) — A businessman has become the fourth Republican challenger for the U.S. House seat held by fellow Republican Steve King.

Fifty-eight-year-old Steve Reeder, of Arnolds Park, said in announcing his candidacy Thursday that balancing the federal budget, revitalizing rural areas and improving access to quality health care are key issues for his campaign.

Read the Full Article

Storm Lake man wanted for sexual abuse of 12-year-old arrested in St. Paul, Minnesota

by Caitlyn Lorr / Sep 27, 2019

ST. PAUL, Minnesota (KCAU) – A Storm Lake man wanted for sexual assault was arrested in St. Paul, Minnesota early Friday morning.

Toua Yang, 18 of Storm Lake, was wanted for sexually assaulting a 12-year-old girl from Storm Lake.

Read the Full Article

—
MORE STORIES

Brightside Cafe's new program will help feed those in need

Local News / 5 hours ago

Acting national intelligence director testifies on whistleblower complaint

News / 14 hours ago

FEMA apologizing for privacy breach

News / 13 hours ago

Sioux City planning for another Fall Fest event

News / 15 hours ago

Read more stories

Current
67°
 Fair
 Tonight
48°

Mostly Cloudy Precip: 20%
 Tomorrow
65°
 Partly Cloudy Precip: 10%

TRENDING STORIES

- 1 Elizabeth Warren campaign volunteer killed in Iowa crash

- 2 1st Annual Craft and Vendor Fair to benefit local church

- 3 CDC warning: Deer with tuberculosis can pass it on to people

- 4 Military Bridge construction impacts local businesses

- 5 Attracting workers to Siouxland

SIouxland Proud

FOLLOW US

Facebook .facebook-st0{fill:#4267B2;} .facebook-st1{fill:#FFFFFF;}

Twitter .twitter-st0{fill:none;} .twitter-st1{fill:#1DA1F2;}

YouTube .youtube-st0{fill:#FF0000;} .youtube-st1{fill:#FFFFFF;}

Email .email-cls-1 { fill: #eb6823; fill-rule: evenodd; }

NEWS APP

Terms of Use Privacy Policy EEO Reports KCAU FCC Public File Nexstar CC Certification Contest Rules Video Center

© 1998 - 2019 Nexstar Broadcasting, Inc. | All Rights Reserved.